

Mike Eldon

Mike Eldon is founder chairman and lead consultant of The DEPOT (The Dan Eldon Place Of Tomorrow), a management consultancy that focuses on leadership, strategy, change management, culture strengthening, performance management and coaching. He is also sought after as a speaker and writer on these and other topics.

He is the chairman of Occidental Insurance and an independent director of Davis & Shirliff, which is in the water and energy sectors. He is a member of the Advisory Council of AFIDEP (the African Institute for Policy Development), a think tank that supports the actualisation of the Demographic Dividend; and a co-founder of the Institute for Responsible Leadership, which was launched in London in October 2019. In March 2021 he was listed as one of the 25 most influential chairman in Kenya by Business Monthly Magazine, where he was ranked at No 10. (See the attachments below.)

Mike is an economics graduate of University College London and a Sloan Fellow of the London Business School. He entered the IT field in 1967, arriving in Kenya in 1977 to become general manager of multinational computer company ICL, and he has lived there ever since. He was a pioneer in the development of the use of IT in Kenya, and was deeply involved with the development of Kenya's first national ICT policy.

Sixteen years ago he reinvented himself as a management consultant, and his clients include public and private sector organisations, family businesses, NGOs, the World Bank and GIZ. He is a Senior Leadership Adviser to the UN Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR), and was an adjunct faculty member in the development and delivery of the transformative leadership programme for the Aga Khan University Graduate School of Media and Communications in their joint initiative with the Harvard Kennedy School. He is a Global Partner of the World Bank's Collaborative Leadership for Development initiative, and runs high level workshops on leadership in Kenya and beyond, as well as being an executive coach.

Until last year he was chairman of the Council of KCA University, and Mike has been chairman of the Council of the Kenya Institute of Management, where he is a Fellow of the Institute. He was a founding director and vice-chairman of the Kenya Private Sector Alliance (Kenya's private sector umbrella body), where he is now a member of the Advisory Council; and he is a founder member of The Management Consultants Association of Kenya.

Since 2007 he has been writing a column for Business Daily, having now published over 360 articles; and his 2009 book Kenyans, Yes we Can! is a collection of his articles and speeches. Mike is married to Evelyn Mungai, the author of From Glass Ceilings to Open Skies, for which he was the editor.
